Million In Los Angeles Stranded By Strike

STREETCAR, BUS WORKERS WALK OFF OF JOBS

Pleas Of City, Federal And Army Leaders Ignored By Union

MARTIAL LAW POSSIBLE

War-Humming District Lacks Adequate Means Of Transportation

LOS ANGELES, July 22—Public transportation throughout greater Los Angeles was at a virtual standstill today as 3,000 streetcar and bus employees walked off their jobs at 3:30 a. m. in a scheduled 24-hour "protest" strike.

Ignoring pleas of city, federal and military leaders, operators of the Los Angeles Railway and Motor Coach Company eased their vehicles into parking lots and carhous—leaving more than 1,000,000 persons in this war-humming area without adequate means of travel.

Only the comparative few trolleys of the Pacific Electric Railway, the other major transportation service, operated as usual. Union leaders expected Pacific Electric employees also to strike, "as soon as final ballots are counted," probably Friday.

Martial Law Looms
Possibility that martial law might be declared, with the army taking over operation of the idle streetcars and motor coaches, appeared possible.

One high army official expressed opinion that Lieut. General John L. DeWitt, commanding the Western Defense Command, may ask for presidential declaration of martial law so that the army can resume operation of the crippled lines.

The army would make no comment on this possibility.
An 11th hour appeal to cancel the strike failed dismally when 500 disgruntled bus and streetcar operators stormed away from a mass meeting called by union leaders.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron, accompanied by a delegation of military and civic leaders, had arranged to address the meeting and urge employees to call off the work stoppage. Arriving nine minutes late, Mayor Bowron and his committee found the union hall practically deserted, with workers filing into the street shouting:

"Let's get on with the strike!"

Ignore Own Leaders

Efforts of union officials to herd members back into the auditorium proved futile.
Meanwhile, bus drivers of Santa Monica's Bay City transit lines voted early today not to engage in a so-called sympathy strike.

At Long Beach, employees of the Lang Motor Company voted 5 to 1 not to join the walkout, and their busses began moving at 5 a. m. today.

Officials of the employees' union—A amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America (AFL) said the strike resulted (Continued on Page Four)

Coal Strike Probers Indict Intimidators, Sound Blunt Warning

PITTSBURGH, July 22 — Full protection of witnesses plus "swift and sure punishment" for persons attempting to intimidate them was promised by the federal government today as it served notice no interference with the coal strike inquiry would be tolerated.

The blunt warning followed the return of an indictment late yesterday by the specially-convened federal grand jury against John Andrew Saltis, alias John A. Saltus, of Hiller, and his wife, Florence, charging them with threatening to blow the head off a key government witness with a shotgun.

An appendage to the indictment read:

"This should serve as a warning that this grand jury will tolerate no interference with its efforts to get at the facts. It should also tell everyone that the government intends to protect the witnesses who are called to testify. Swift and sure punishment will follow any attempt to intimidate them—now or in the future."

The grand jury, which has been probing the cause of the constantly recurring mine strikes in western Pennsylvania's bituminous fields since July 14, halted its secret inquiry to bring in the true bill against the Fayette county couple.

Saltis and his wife were charged with threatening to shoot Kenneth Harvey, a fellow United Mine Worker at Hiller who testified before the jury Monday afternoon.

Harvey, presumably one of the many miners called by the grand jury to relate how roving bands of pickets in Fayette county succeeded in keeping them from entering the mines during the recent three-week outlaw strike, was subject to recall before the secret hearing.

The unexpected indictment recalled with startling vividness the solemn warning of U. S. Attorney Charles F. Uhl at the outset of the investigation that miners scheduled to testify were probably in for some heavy retaliatory measures at the hands of their comrades.

Uhl at that time exacted a pledge from newspapers to refrain from publishing the names of rank and file members of the UMW who appeared before the jury since the men were "already on the spot."

FATE OF LEWIS COUP UP TO WPB

Big Wage Increase Gained For Illinois Miners If Board Approves

WASHINGTON, July 22 — The fate of John L. Lewis' latest coup d'etat today rests squarely with the War Labor Board.

The bushy browed leader of the nation's coal miners succeeded in getting a $3 per day, $18 per week wage increase for more than 30,000 Illinois members of the United Mine Workers.

Lewis, sworn foe of the War Labor Board, maintained his fiction that the board does not exist and did not submit the new contract between his UMW and the Illinois coal producers to the WLB. However, the Illinois operators themselves have put the issue of the wage increase up to the WLB for a final decision.

The board, it was learned, will (Continued on Page Four)

SAM RAYBURN BOOSTED FOR VICE PRESIDENCY

NEW ORLEANS, July 22—Rep. Edward Hebert (D) of Louisiana declared today that Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn should be the Democratic candidate for vice president on the 1944 ticket.

"It is about time the South should be recognized by the Democratic party in power and we should have recognition on the national ticket," he declared in an address here.

TIRE RATIONING END FORECAST BY NEXT SPRING

Jeffers Says Unforeseen Military Demands Only Likely Preventive

RUBBER PLANTS READY

Some 30,000,000 Synthetic Treads Expected To Be Available In 1944

WASHINGTON, July 22—Rubber Director William Jeffers drafted a report for the White House today predicting that it will be possible to lift all tire rationing restrictions next Spring unless there are unforeseen military demands.

This was the forecast after it was disclosed that James F. Byrnes, head of the Office of War Mobilization and "president of the home front," had asked Jeffers to make a report on the rubber situation to him.

The action was taken, according to Byrnes' office, after Jeffers recently issued orders tightening up the available number of tires by ruling that no certificate would be issued for purchase of spare tires for automobiles.

There has been some concern expressed in Washington that the tightening up of the restrictions was due to a slowing down of the synthetic rubber program.

Conserving Supplies
Actually, it was learned, Jeffers issued the order to conserve rubber supplies through the Summer and Fall. The need for conservation developed partly because the anticipated number of casings for recaps did not develop.

However, big new synthetic rubber plants are expected to come into operation on schedule late in the Fall, and it was estimated that some 30,000,000 synthetic tires may be available by the end of 1944.

Complete details of the rubber program are expected to be included in the report to Byrnes. Meanwhile, the War Mobilization Director said that he may make public within 10 days or two weeks a report on his new investigation into the entire petroleum situation. However, Byrnes refused to forecast any improvement in the gasoline rationing restrictions.

Conversely, he said that it was more important to see that there were adequate supplies of fuel (home heating) oil this Winter than it was to consider needs of increasing allowances for motorists now.

Nor would he comment on pro-

BOARD TO SET PAY RATES FOR FARM LABORERS

Prevailing farm labor rates to be paid foreign, intrastate or out-of-state labor that might be brought to Pickaway county for farm work will be determined at a meeting to be held next Thursday evening, July 29, in the office of F. K. Blair, county extension agent in the basement of the postoffice building. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock, Central War Time.

A Pickaway county Farm Wage Board, first ever established in the district, has been appointed to determine the prevailing farm labor rates. The wage board is made up of men who regularly employ farm labor the year around. They also employ for special work such as corn cuttings, corn husking, hay making, wheat harvest, etc.

Included on the board are T. L. Cromley, Ashville; K. E. Dountz, Ashville; Roy England, Circleville, and John H. Dunlap, Jr., Williamsport.

In announcing the meeting to be held next Thursday, Mr. Blair said that any other persons interested in farm wage rates are welcome to attend the meeting.

Exterminator Gas In Sewer System Causes Downtown Area Scare

Circleville business district had a gas scare Wednesday afternoon that sent operators of several business places into the streets and resulted in a hurry call for the fire department's emergency crew.

Employees of the J. W. Eshelman and Son Milling Co. were using a commercial gas in an effort to kill rats in a storage building in the rear of the Harden-Stevenson garage, when some of the gas found its way into the city sewage system.

The gas moved through the sewer into the business district, then made its way into several business houses. Since most up-town establishments were closed Wednesday afternoon only a few were affected, among them being Stone's Grill, Harden-Stevenson garage, Howard barber shop, Chinese laundry and Grant's store. Operators and employees were forced into the street when tears started to pour from their eyes.

The gas made its way into the city jail where Virgil Fullen, 47, of Middletown, was awaiting hearing on a driving when drunk charge. The fire department crew armed with gas masks went into the jail to remove Fullen. Tears were pouring from his eyes. Later in the day Fullen went to county jail in default of $100 and costs fine assessed him by Mayor Ben H. Gordon. He was relieved to get out of city jail.

The gas was finally removed from the sewers when the fire department opened manholes in the uptown area.

Eshelman Co. officials said Thursday that the gas used is a commercial product which contains some tear gas and which also contains some poison sufficient to kill rats. They denied however that there is any cyanide in the gas, as reported.

Cyanide Is Deadly
Presence of the fumes was first noticed by William McAbee, who was working in the basement at city hall.

After opening the manholes in the district, firemen flushed the sewers to force out the gas.

PERMIT FOR HELICOPTER ROUTE SOUGHT IN EAST

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 22 —The Asbury Park-New York Transit Corp., a bus company operating between New York City and the New Jersey shore, today had applied to the Civil Aeronautics Administration for a permit to operate a helicopter route after the war.

In announcing the plan, James Rollo, president of the concern, said one route would run between New York and Highlands, Long Branch, Asbury Park, and Spring Lake, and the other between New York and Point Pleasant, Beach Haven and Atlantic City.

De Gaulle's Activities Stir Fears

Serious New Crisis Seen In Algiers—Giraud Hurrying Back

WASHINGTON, July 22 — There was growing concern in official circles in Washington today over the French political situation in Algiers.

Advices reaching the American government indicate that a serious new crisis is developing there as a result of the apparent efforts of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, to extend his control over French affairs.

The situation has reached such a serious stage that Gen. Henri Giraud, commander of the French North African forces and co-president of the French National Liberation Committee, is reportedly cutting short his visit to London to return to Algiers.

Latest development to cause apprehension in American quarters was Gen. De Gaulle's action in pushing through the committee in Algiers a decree retiring 20 of the generals who have been serving under Giraud.

This move was taken by Gen. De Gaulle in the absence of Giraud, and apparently after Admiral Henri Collinet, Giraud's naval representative on the committee, had walked out in protest against the Fighting French activities.

The decree which the committee has approved under Gen. De Gaulle's pressure calls for lowering the retirement age of generals in the French army to 61. It affects 20 out of 120 French generals.

While the view prevails in American quarters that the move to put new blood in the higher ranks of the French army may have its merits, it is felt it should not have been carried out in the absence of Giraud, and at a time when he apparently was not fully represented on the committee.

Such action is considered in official Washington circles as evidence of Gen. De Gaulle's determination to dominate the committee. It is feared such action will only tend to disturb further the already precarious unity which the American and British governments worked so hard to achieve among the two French factions.

The danger also is seen that Gen. Giraud, on his return to Algiers, may declare the committee's move void, thus precipitating a showdown with De Gaulle.

This uncertainty concerning the French political situation in North Africa, especially the instability of the committee, is considered by American officials to be justification for this government's action in withholding recognition of that body.

U. S. SUBMARINE TRITON FAILS TO REACH PORT

WASHINGTON, July 22—The American submarine Triton was reported today by the navy as "presumed lost" on patrol operations after a brilliant war career during which the undersea craft destroyed more than a dozen Japanese warships and merchant vessels.

The submarine with a crew estimated at 60 officers and men apparently went down fighting since the navy reported that it "failed to return from patrol operations and must be presumed to be lost."

Skipper of the ill-fated Triton was 33-year-old Lt. Comdr. George Kenneth MacKenzie, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y.

GUERRILLA PACT REACHED
CAIRO, July 22—Full agreement has been reached by Gen. Draja Mihailovich, Yugoslav patriot leader, and other guerrilla factions in Bosnia and Montenegro, enabling a united front against Axis occupational forces to facilitate allied invasion of the European mainland, reliable advices in Cairo said today.

TROOPS FLEE IN PANIC

Germans Still Resisting Stubbornly In Area South Of Catania

BULLETIN

LONDON, July 22—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Allied headquarters reported today that American troops "have reached the Tyrrhenian Sea" and that the fall of Palermo is imminent.

By International News Service
Axis resistance in southern and western Sicily collapsed completely today, enabling troops of the United States Seventh Army to sweep almost unopposed to the outskirts of Marsala, leading port on the extreme west coast.

The important town of Castelvetro and its great airfield fell into American hands, along with numerous other key points and towns in the west and Central areas of the island.

Hammer Germans

Troops of the British Eighth Army hammered steadily against undiminished German resistance at Catania. But in the west the enemy gave up and abandoned its lines in panicky retreat, making no effort to stem the advance even at easily defensible points.

Sciacca, Santa Caterina, Ramacca and Menfi were among the former Axis strongholds taken over by onrushing American forces within the last few hours.

Axis troops in western Sicily are entirely dispirited, a spokesman said. American troops sweeping north contacted elements of the 26th Italian Assiata division which gave themselves up in whole batches. New incidents were

U. S. AIR FORCE BUILDS UP FOR KILLING BLOW

LONDON, July 22 — American air commanders, the London Daily Sketch said today, are building up a powerful invasion air force in Britain.
The air invaders are being equipped with up-to-date bombers, including the fastest ships in the world, the most modern fighters, transport planes and gliders.
The force already is carrying out large-scale invasion rehearsals with American ground troops, the Sketch added.

NEW CRUISER TO BE PROVIDED FOR POLICEMEN

Safety Director Ordered To Advertise For Bids On Auto

PRESENT CAR IS "WRECK"

Council Approves $500 For Extra Labor At Disposal Plant

Safety-Service Director Clarence Helvering was instructed by council Wednesday evening to start advertising for bids for a new police cruiser to replace a 1936 Ford coach now being used when it is in repair.

Police are seeking a four-door sedan, fully equipped, although the bids to be asked by Mr. Helvering will not include the equipment requirements, councilmen pointing out that because of shortages some dealers who might have automobiles available might not bid if they were required to obtain spotlights, radio and other accessories. Safety department will be expected to buy the accessories after the automobile has been purchased.

Police Chief W. F. McCrady told council that the Ford is too dangerous for policemen to operate in a chase or on any other kind of a hurried call. "I've refused to ride in it when we have to go somewhere in a hurry, and I've told members of the department to do the same thing," the chief told council.

Councilman Boyd Horn expressed himself in favor of waiting until the first of the year before buying a new car, but he was told that by that time no new cars may be available. He voted in favor of the resolution which instructed Mr. Helvering to seek bids. All other members of council favored immediate purchase.

Council took action on several other matters Wednesday evening among them being included: Extra Labor Approved

Approval of $500 for extra labor at the sewage disposal plant for the remainder of the year, the plant being short one full time employee, the extra money being paid as overtime for present members of the crew who will be paid at their regular rate for overtime work.

Approval of $550 for the police department's special police fund for the remainder of 1943. Chief McCrady pointing out that this money is needed since one special officer must be employed at all times to fill the vacancy left when Miller Fissell was given a leave of absence.

Heard first reading of an ordinance which provides a system of fines for conviction of a person being intoxicated when under physical control of an automobile. This law is already on the state books and several arrests have been made here but since there has been no city ordinance all fines have been going to the state. A city ordinance will keep revenues assessed in the Circleville treasury. The physical control law differs from the driving when intoxicated law since a person need only be sitting behind the wheel of a car, if he is drunk, to be charged with physical control. Fines to be assessed may run from $25 to $500.

Instructed Safety-Service Director Helvering to advertise for bids for materials for resurfacing Pleasant street.

Gave the finance committee more time to consider full time employment of a clerk for the auditor's office where sewage disposal plant bills are mailed quarterly.

Heard a financial report as of July 21 which showed a total of $33,708.58 in the city treasury in the following funds: general, $7,699.11; sewage disposal, $11,400.77; library, $4,673.68; auto street repair, $7,179.38; gasoline tax, $2,494.94; Berger hospital, $260.70.

BLOOD DONORS URGED TO GIVE CO-OPERATION

Blood donors scheduled for appearance at the Red Cross bank in Circleville Monday and Tuesday should immediately notify Mrs. A. Hulse Hays if they can not keep their appointments, Hal Dean, head of the local organization said Thursday.

"We wish to utilize every minute of the time that the Blood Bank is in the city and we can not do this if some of the appointments are not kept," Dean declared. "If donors can not keep their appointments and so notify us we will be able to schedule other donors in their places. It is extremely important that no time be lost in the local undertaking."

In the last two appearances of the Blood Bank in the city many persons scheduled for appearance failed to keep their appointments. Likewise, they failed to give notice of inability to be present and as a consequence much blood that otherwise would have been donated was lost.

Mrs. Hays may be called at her residence.

The Rev. A. K. Reiton, who served 33 years as a missionary in China, and who was held prisoner by the Japanese after declaration of war on the United States, will speak at the Church of Christ in Christian Union Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. Mr. Reiton escaped capture by the Japs for a period of 46 days and he then was taken prisoner and spent five months behind barbed wire in a concentration camp, living with three other families in a tiny room. He returned to his homeland on the Gripsholm in exchange for Japanese prisoners.

The former missionary has an intensely interesting story to tell of life in China before and after the Japs came. He saw much of the horrors of war and the diabolical torture of the Japanese. He now is on a lecture tour of the United States and Canada.

Three Narrowly Escape Drowning When Boat Overturns In Scioto

Three Circleville Negroes narrowly escaped drowning Wednesday afternoon when the rowboat from which they were fishing overturned in the Scioto river in the rear of the Container Corporation of America plant. They were Walter Jones, 41; his son, William, 12, and Jay Henry, Jr., 34, all of East Ohio street.

The trio had been fishing near the wire dam back of the strawboard nearly two hours when a log carried in the fast current of the swollen river struck their boat, overturning it.

The elder Jones was caught in the current and was carried over the wire dam. Able to swim, he made his way to shore after he had been carried almost half a mile from the scene of the mishap.

The younger Jones and Henry gained holds on the wire dam and remained there although the swift current at times threatened to send them over the dam.

Walter Jones ran from the river to the power plant of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., West Mount street, where he telephoned police, informing Chief W. F. McCrady that the other two were hanging on the wire dam. McCrady started to hunt a boat and spent almost an hour searching for one before he located Roy Wallis.

Wallis obtained his boat and with the chief went down the river where they found Henry and the younger Jones still hanging on the wire dam. Both were weak when their rescuers took them into the boat.

A LITTLE CARE IS ALL IT REQUIRES

It's hard to keep a keen, alive interest in things when surrounded by dingy, grimy furnishings. That's why your vacuum cleaner plays such an important part in keeping up the morale of your family. To keep your cleaner on the job for the duration, treat it kindly. Remember—proper care means longer wear.

VACUUM CLEANER TIPS

- Empty dust bag every time cleaner is used.
- Keep floor brush free from hair, thread, and lint.
- Replace brush if tufts become worn.
- Avoid running cleaner over pins, coins, or other metal objects. Pick them up by hand.
- Clean brushes, wipe off other attachments after using.
- Follow manufacturer's instructions for oiling and call your dealer if cleaner is not working properly.

Waste in war is sabotage. Don't waste electricity just because it is not rationed.

INEPT JAPS

THE amusing peculiarities of the legendary "heathen Chinese", made famous by Bret Harte long before this present war, were nothing to the weird ways of the heathen Japanese as revealed now. The discerning Maj. George Fielding Eliot, foremost commentator of the present war, comes right out with it, calling pointed attention to the Japs' "ways that are strange and tricks that are dark."

For example, ever since the fighting started on Guadalcanal a year ago, those Jap supermen have been sending task forces against the Americans taking a toehold in the south Pacific, but have never sent enough men to do the job. They just seem to fiddle and mess around, and lose their men and ships and planes, and wear themselves down, for lack of concentrated and effective power where power is needed.

This might be a rash thing to say, on the supposition that it tends to arouse the Japs and spur them to make a real, all-out effort in the Pacific. But if the Major knows his war stuff, as he apparently does, the Japs have already so fiddled away their strength that their power is visibly declining.

ANOTHER GREAT CANAL

AMERICANS do not always appreciate the wonders they possess close at home. Though the Panama and Suez Canals are more widely known, the combined tonnage of the freight passing through them both is less than in the Soo Canal at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., connecting Lake Superior with the lower Great Lakes. Particularly important to the war effort is the immense volume of the ore traffic, now to become still greater from the opening of a new lock.

The new lock, just dedicated, is 5½ feet deeper than the three others, besides having technical improvements which will greatly cut the time for sending boats through. Last winter at the Soo was the bitterest ever recorded, but the lock was completed almost four months ahead of schedule.

Such new structures will be of great value in times of peace as well as war. Not all our colossal war-time expenditures will go up in smoke.

WHERE FOOD WILL GO

THE United Nations must be prepared to afford relief to 160,000,000 people between now and the end of next year. So the Baltimore Kiwanis Club was told lately by Francis B. Sayre, deputy director of the State Department's office of foreign relief and rehabilitation.

These people are our friends of conquered Europe. As soon as they have a chance, they will contribute actively toward winning the war. Their needs are one reason for the food shortage. But in

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

TOMMY CORCORAN ACTIVE

WASHINGTON — Final decision to oust both Jesse Jones and Wallace from any connection with Economic Warfare, replacing them with Leo Crowley, was attended by much inner White House debate and personnel juggling. It showed significantly how the President's new crop of advisors line up.

The solution first proposed by ex-Judge Jimmy Byrnes was to make Wallace's director, Milo Perkins, an Assistant Secretary of State under Cordell Hull. This would have kept Perkins, an able administrator thoroughly familiar with Economic Warfare, but put him back under the State Department, where Economic Warfare was originally.

Two years ago Secretary Hull got his Tennessee dander up when this job was transferred away from his slow-paced diplomats and he has never stonned pulling wires to get it back.

Not many people know it, but in the end, it was Tom Corcoran who, in the present imbroglio, swung the Economic Warfare job away from Hull to Leo Crowley.

The young brain truster, formerly the President's closest adviser, had been ejected out of his White House intimacy by Harry Hopkins. So this was a real triumph.

Hopkins, now closest to the President, spiked Corcoran long ago; but Tommy still has a powerful friend in Justice Byrnes, also in Ben Cohen and Leo Crowley. Thus indirectly, Corcoran was able to convince the White House that Economic Warfare should not go back to the State Department, where it had sagged woefully, but should get fresh, new blood through Crowley.

Note: Whether it can get that fresh blood through Crowley remains to be seen. An Al executive, Crowley is already overburdened with Federal Deposit Insurance and Alien Property Custodian. He has done a good job, but so did Jesse Jones before he took on too many responsibilities.

HOPKINS VS. WALLACE

Final line-up of the White House inner circle on the basic question of ousting Henry Wallace was a split vote—3 to 2. Harry Hopkins, Judge Sam Rosenman and Byrnes all voted against the Vice-President. Hopkins has always been against Wallace, has made catty remarks about him for years, started some time ago to eulge him out of renomination if FDR runs for a 4th term. Also Harry is a poker-playing intimate of Jesse Jones.

Siding with Wallace were Budget Director Harold Smith and his chief aide Wayne Coy. Smith, a Republican, together with Coy, maintained that Wallace and Perkins had done an excellent administrative job. Their BEW was the only new Government agency not to have its appropriations cut by Congress, had recouped U. S. war materials abroad after about half of them were coralled by the Japs. And, according to the budget directors, BEW did not deserve to be penalized.

In the end, FDR himself decided to oust Wallace. The Vice-President had submitted a memo to the White House two weeks before, telling of recent Jesse Jones delays in the purchase of strategic materials. These were not delays of 18 months ago, as stated in the President's letter, but instances of the past few days and weeks.

Spiking Blood Donor Gossip

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THIS COLUMN presumes that every American, male and female, not in the armed forces, between the ages of eighteen and fifty-five

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

(or in some cases over), has considered giving a pint of blood in order to make blood plasma for the armed forces.

When a procedure so unusual and foreign to ordinary routine is carried out on such a large scale as Red Cross blood donating, there is bound to be a great deal of gossip and rumors which spread like wildfire, and in this case are often subversive to the war effort. One such piece of gossip which has come to my ears is the great fear of fainting on the part of the donor giving the blood.

In the first place I think I should say, having seen several blood banks in operation, that every care and precaution is taken to carry out the procedure with the very best technique: there are doctors and nurses and attendants; the donor is, if necessary, rested before the blood is withdrawn.

A rest period is provided afterwards with refreshments of orange juice or hot coffee or milk or whatever seems most appropriate. The amount of blood which is removed is one pint—approximately one-twelfth of the blood in the body—and by universal medical agreement can do no permanent harm. All these things tend to minimize the importance of fainting. As a matter of fact, a faint does no particular harm except that it creates an area of fear in the community of the donor.

Some London physicians have attempted to find out what particular type of donor is likely to faint and why he does so. Fainting is more frequent among donors bled for the first time. Neither anemia nor overweight has any apparent relation to fainting. The surface area of the body, which is a rough guide to blood volume, is somewhat smaller among fainters than among non-fainters. The humidity or room temperature has no relation to fainting. Men faint just as often as women. The rate of withdrawal of blood has no effect as long as the amount drawn stays within the prescribed limit.

Fatigue seems to be a very important factor. This is probably because it causes a depression of blood pressure. Fainting is found more often in those who had their last meal four and one-half hours before donating blood, or longer. The blood pressure taken before the blood is drawn is no guide to the likelihood of fainting. A drop of 7 per cent in blood pressure occurs immediately after bleeding, but this alone will not cause fainting. Donors who come from hot offices or industrial plants can be protected from fainting by drinking some salt water about an hour before the blood donation is begun.

The fact that a person is pale before giving blood does not indicate that fainting is likely to occur. The symptoms that occur before fainting begins are a general feeling of heat, nausea and discomfort in the stomach.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. P.: What is the sickness common among welders who work on galvanized iron? Does it cause tooth decay?

Answer: Galvanizers are exposed to a number of industrial poisons, depending upon what kind of process is employed—arsenic, arsenic, zinc (brass), arsenuretted hydrogen, hydrochloric acid, etc. Both zinc and arsenic cause tooth decay. The industrial surgeon employed in any particular factory should know its hazards, and be ready to furnish information about prevention.

H. H.: Would you advise a woman at 38 to attempt to have a first baby?

Answer: It has been done successfully plenty of times in the history of the world. I would not presume to make an individual recommendation; that is the privilege of your physician.

Leave My Heart Alone

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

KAREN BELL, wealthy and lovely, has been the sweetheart of another member of her rich Florida set. PAUL WYATT, since childhood. However, she surprisingly encounters a young stranger, obviously not of her social standing, and learns that he is MARTIN HALIDAY.

YESTERDAY: Encountering Martin Haliday once again, Karen suddenly and surprisingly finds herself liking him.

CHAPTER TWELVE

IF ANYONE had told Karen that her meeting in the five-and-ten with Martin Haliday would end in her promising to have dinner with him in his trailer the following evening she would have willingly agreed that she WAS a riddle, or the one who was crazy, instead of that odd young man.

Still there seemed no reason why she should not accept when he suggested, after their shopping was completed—and a very gay time they had picking out the things a little boy would enjoy—that she let him prove his boast that he was an excellent cook.

"That is," he had added, with his one-sided grin, "if the guy who is always late won't object to your dining with me. You can assure him I am perfectly harmless. You can tell him I merely wished to return your hospitality."

To which Karen had retorted that she did not have to offer any explanations to Paul, who was most understanding and always on time, with the one exception that Mr. Haliday, unfortunately, had witnessed. "Besides," she had finished, "Paul happens to be out of town."

She told herself, as she got ready to keep this dinner date, that she was going mostly out of curiosity and not from any desire to continue her acquaintance with the host. She would like to see what a trailer camp was like. She would like to see what the inside of Martin Haliday's trailer was like and how he lived and what he did and if he was as good a cook as he claimed to be.

There was no doubt about this last, she had to admit, after finishing the appetizing meal of steak, done to a turn over a charcoal fire, potatoes baked in its coals, a truly delectable and artistic salad of mixed greens with a master chef's tasty dressing, and now, over coffee that was as near perfection as any served in any fine hostelry, she admitted it out loud.

"You win," she smiled over the rim of her raised cup, as if lifting it in a gesture to drink to the victory. "You are an excellent cook, Mr. Haliday. You are an artist, really. I never would have believed before giving blood does so good, if I had not seen you doing it with my own eyes, and eaten it with my own mouth. And, if I may say so, you are a very excellent host, as well. In other words, I'm trying, in my poor way, to tell you how much I really have enjoyed it."

"You sound like the guest who is going to eat and run." He smiled back at her, raising his cup to touch it briefly to hers in a movement that thanked her for such tribute. "You must learn, milady, to be more trusting and believing. And since we have broken bread together, don't you think you might try dropping that mister? My friends call me Marty, or Mart, and I answer to it."

"I'll try it, on one condition," Karen returned. She had to admit, too, that she had been wrong about a lot of things. Such as that they could not possibly be friends, for instance. This time, so far at least, there had been nothing but friendliness between them. "You must stop calling me names. I'm not a gentlemanly, or even very fair. And I answer to Karen, if you'll try that instead of all the others you try on me."

"You win this time." He put down his cup to look straight into her eyes. "I plead guilty to both charges. My only defense is that I was afraid of you, Karen."

"Afraid of me?"

"Scared silly," He nodded emphatically. "I told you the other night when we were dancing together, that you are far too lovely. You are even lovelier, if I may mention it, sitting here in my trailer with the candle light reflecting in your eyes and shimmering on your hair, than before. But, because you are here, I know now that you are human, not a queen, as I called you, or a sea goddess, but a real, earthy person."

Karen said, "I'm glad you came down to earth and realized that, Marty. Certainly I'm human. I can't help it, I can't, that I'm Karen Bell? I never thought of myself as a queen, or a lady bountiful, or any of the other names you . . ."

"You promised to forget and forgive those," he interrupted. "Suppose we really agree to be friends this time, not just shake on it, and then turn our backs on it, thinking it's impossible."

So he had thought friendship between them impossible, too. But it was something that he had even thought about it. "It was mostly your fault," she reminded him once more. "I'll work at it—friendship—if you will." All those differences that she had felt stood between them seemed removed now. They were just two young people who could enjoy one another's company.

"It shouldn't be hard work," he said. "But, by the way, don't you wear a ring, or something to show you are tied to that fellow you seem to think is so darn near perfection? What I'm getting at is that you should, you know, if only to help me keep it in mind."

He had said the word "safe" because he knew she was wearing now really to be friends? "Paul has my ring, but he hasn't given it to me yet."

"Late again, eh? Now don't get mad, although you're lovelier than ever when you color up like that, if I may say so."

"You always say whatever you like, so why do you ever ask?" That evening that one. "But I'm not angry." She told herself now that she understood him better she would never let him get under her skin. "That was my fault, too. I was too tired the night of the Festival. Besides, I don't need to wear a ring to help myself remember that I'm going to marry Paul. He really is about perfect. I'd like you to know each other some time."

"That's very sweet of you," "Marty's tone was slightly mocking, although his blue eyes held sincerity. "I'd like to know your fiancé some day." He said it in such a way that it did not sound enthusiastic, or as if the day would be near, or likely. "Meanwhile, so that we can get on with our work, suppose we take a walk in the moonlight, which is about the extent of the entertainment I can now provide. You may want to see the rest of the trailer camp, how the other half lives, you know, and take a look at Lake Worth, which is our substitute for your ocean."

"I'd like it very much," Karen said. "If you don't forget your promise—all that rot about 'the other half' and your substitutions. Do you know you really are the one who is a snob, Marty. But before we start on any walk we are going to do these dishes." She got up from the little table that was fitted so neatly into its dining nook and began to clear it. There was a tiny sink and stove and ice box and cupboards that formed a kitchen and completed this end of the trailer. The other was the living and sleeping space, containing what looked like a most comfortable day-bed with heaps of pillows, bookshelves that lent an air of hominess not to be denied, a most impressive radio cabinet.

It was like the doll house, Karen thought. It would be as much fun to play at keeping house in it.

"Well, if you insist." Her host followed the example she had set, but not with as much alacrity. "All good cooks shun the cleaning-up process. Or maybe it's that every fireless needs the womanly influence. I usually let the dishes rest until I have to bathe them in order to use them again." He opened a drawer and took out an apron, which he proceeded to tie around Karen's slender waist. He said he preferred a dish towel around his middle, since it was not quite so effeminate.

"And you win the third round," he said a bit later, polishing off glasses and silverware like an expert, if he did shy from such occupations. "I am the one who is the snob. You see, I don't mind calling myself names. Remember, I said I am a coward, too, where women are concerned. So treat me with tenderness, please, Karen. Leave my heart alone. No matter what happens, remember I asked of you that one big favor. And now that we have tidied up so neatly, thank you, that more than pays your dinner check in full. Let's see if it's the same old moon up in my sky that was with us the other night in yours."

"There is only one moon," Karen reminded him severely. But would it look the same tonight?

Balkans May Be Main Arena Of Allied European Invasion. Recent Events Pointing To Possible Thrust There

WASHINGTON—On the eve of Allied invasion of Hitler-held Europe these thoughts present themselves as a possible last-minute forecast of where the United Nations may choose to strike:

Salonika and the Vardar and Struma river valleys stand out like more thumbs among the score or more natural invasion routes from which the Allies may choose to open the long-awaited second front.

The Balkans may be the theater for the main invasion attack or for a diversion thrust to feint the Axis out of position for the real assault somewhere in western Europe.

Whatever the decision of the Allied high command, recent events in Turkey, the Near East and North Africa are hardly reassuring to Axis commanders in southeastern Europe.

The closing of the Turkish-Syrian frontier for 36 hours recently might have been to screen movements of the British Ninth and Tenth armies in Syria and Iraq. These armies have been heavily reinforced in recent months. The Polish army alone in the Near East, now numbering 100,000 men, is probably being re-equipped with arms and munitions captured by the Allies in Tunisia.

This force has asked the Allied high command for permission to spearhead an invasion in the Balkans.

The whereabouts of Montgomery's veteran British Eighth army that smashed Rommel at El Alamein, the British First army and the United States forces massed in North Africa—American troops were recently reported to be reinforcing the British garrison at Cyprus, a strategic springboard for a thrust into the Aegean or at German-held Crete—are secrets the Axis would like to know.

Turkey's attitude, too, is a worry.

Following British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's talks with Turkish President Ismet Inonu near Ankara in February, Admiral

Sir John Cunningham, British commander-in-chief in the Near East, conferred with Turkish military leaders less than two weeks ago.

Turkey can put a rugged army of close to 2,000,000 men in the field. It has been receiving lend-lease equipment from the United States, fighter planes and medium bombers from England.

Furthermore, Turkey could give the Allies a foothold on the continent—European Turkey on the western side of the Sea of Marmara—from which Bulgaria, most reluctant of Hitler's satellites, could be invaded through the Maritsa river valley.

However, if the Allies strike through Grecian Salonika and the Vardar and Struma river valleys, they will be repeating the strategy they used successfully in World War I.

In 1918 the situation was very much like it is today. Though Germany controlled most of the continent and was fighting on a single front in France, her great summer offensive to end the war had failed. The Allied high command, realizing that the great bulk of the German armies was pinned down in France, ordered an attack through the Balkans, "the backdoor to Europe."

On Sept. 1, 1918, the British, French, Serbian and Greek troops, which had been massing at Salonika, moved north into the Vardar and Struma valleys. Within three weeks the Bulgarian army was defeated at Doiran-Vardar. Allied columns fanned out into Bulgaria and Serbia. Captured Skopje on Sept. 23.

The road to Sofia was open and the Bulgars surrendered on the 29th. Turkey followed Bulgaria into surrender in a month, and then Austria-Hungary, and finally Germany herself threw in the sponge in rapid order.

This time, according to indications, the Bulgars would put up even less of a fight. Rumania and Hungary, too, would like to find a way to make peace. They have suffered terrific casualties fighting for the Nazis in Russia and probably would not have entered the war at all if not for overpowering pressure from Berlin.

And last, but far from least, Allied forces moving up the Vardar and Struma could make contact with General Mihailovich's heroic Chetniks and the Communist Partisan-fighters in Yugoslavia. Merely trying to keep the country under control has some 150,000 Axis troops in Yugoslavia fully occupied.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPE

First-Aid for Bush Fruits in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
 Released by Central Press Association

THE VICTORY gardener will find that there are insects which have a great liking for bush fruits such as the raspberry and blackberry. To protect such bush fruits some knowledge of first-aid for them is required.

The blackberry and raspberry shrubs are frequently attacked by the Rose Scale. As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, Rose Scale is a snow-white, nearly circular scale insect. These scales are about one-fifth of an inch across when full grown.

Raspberry or blackberry canes badly infested with Rose Scale should be cut off and burned. Dormant applications of a miscible oil or lime-sulphur spray will control the pests.

Cane-borers, considered one of the most serious insect pests of the raspberry, also attack blackberry and dewberry plants. The larvae of the cane-borer frequently causes swellings of the canes, as illustrated. As a result of this attack, the cane dies or breaks off at the point where the swelling occurs.

To control these borers, cut out any infested canes, also any tops which seem to be withering or drooping. Make the cut somewhat below the point at which the injury occurs. Burn the cuttings, for the eggs or larvae of the borer will be in the cut off sections of cane.

where war materials were held up despite the constant importuning of Wallace and Perkins.

After this memo had been on the President's desk for two weeks with no action, Wallace finally opened up his public blast.

He told the President in advance that he was going to make a statement, but either Roosevelt did not appreciate how strong the statement was going to be, or else Wallace got his dander up and warmed to the writing afterwards.

At any rate, the blast caught the President off base and he was irked.

JUDGE VINSON PERFORMS

White House adviser who did the most efficient job for the President during the Jones-Wallace row was hard-hitting Judge Fred Vinson. He was the man who stopped the Congressional investigation of the dispute. Because the President had okayed four letters authorizing Jesse Jones to hold up rubber, aluminum and other strategic materials, a Congressional investigation was the last thing the administration wanted. It would have shown that the President acted hastily, to say the least, in signing Jones' memos.

So on the day the House Rules Committee was to vote on an investigation of the Jones-Wallace row, smart Fred Vinson went up on Capitol Hill and got his successor in Congress appointed to the Rules Committee.

When Vinson resigned from Congress in 1937 to become a court of appeals judge, he helped elect Kentucky's erudite Joseph B. Bates to the vacancy. So with the Rules Committee deadlocked over whether or not to investigate Jones and Wallace, Vinson got Bates appointed, and Bates broke the Rules Committee tie.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Sir William Beveridge, author of the famous Beveridge plan for increased social security in England, gave a most enlightening address in Washington recently, but later proved unable to "take it" at a reception at the home of Pennsylvania's ex-Governor Gifford.

At the reception, Assistant Attorney General Norman Littell, who made the Navy take back its Elk Hills deal with Standard Oil of California, remarked:

"I understand, Sir William, that the Scandinavian countries really pioneered in social security."

"Not at all," replied the author of the Beveridge plan. "What they did amounted to very little. New Zealand was the real pioneer."

"Have you been to the Scandinavian countries?" asked Littell.

"No, I haven't."

"Well, I had understood that social security was like the bill of rights to them."

"Not at all, not at all," replied Beveridge. "England is much more advanced."

"In that case," interposed Dr. Raphael Lemkin, consultant of the Board of Economic Warfare, "why did you propose your famous Beveridge plan for England?"

"What are you trying to do?" choked Sir William. "insult me?"

City Council Takes First Steps To Pass Curfew Legislation

JUDGE WELDON CITES NEED FOR LOCAL CONTROL

Final Approval Of Bill Anticipated At Session In Mid-August

DEADLINE SET AT 10:30

Penalties Provided For Parents Who Permit Juveniles On Streets

Curfew legislation, which juvenile and police authorities hope will clean up an ever-increasing juvenile delinquency problem, was started through Circleville council Wednesday evening with approval of the ordinance expected by mid-August.

An ordinance, read to council by Juvenile Judge Lemuel B. Weldon, was given a first reading as an emergency measure. All four active members of council, including W. M. Reid, Boyd Horn, Donald Mason and George L. Crites, expressed their approval, but under council rules a vote of five is necessary to put through an emergency. Council at present has only five members, the fifth being Frank A. Lynch, who is unable to attend meetings because of illness. Two vacancies existing will be filled after the primary election, August 10, present members of council expecting the bill to be passed immediately after councilmen are appointed to serve the remainder of terms left vacant by death of Julius Helwage and resignation of W. E. Wallace. Council will appoint men nominated for council positions to fill the unexpired terms.

Effective On Passage

As the curfew ordinance is drawn it will become effective immediately after passage by council and approval by Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

Judge Weldon in addressing council declared that Circleville already has a curfew ordinance on its books, but added that it is not effective since it orders minors off streets at 7:30 in the winter and 8:00 in the summer. Neither is there a penalty clause attached. "This ordinance," council was told, "orders all minors to be off the streets from 10:30 p. m. to 5 a. m. of the following day. It applies to boys and girls under 17, and makes their parents responsible for their behavior and for their observance of the law."

Parents Liable

"Parents of youngsters will be ordered before the mayor after the first violation and will receive a warning. For a second offense a fine up to $10 may be assessed, and for third and subsequent offenses a fine of up to $25 is provided. In addition, the juvenile official said, "the mayor may put violators in jail up to 10 days for a third offense."

Judge Weldon told council that the ordinance follows closely a measure now in operation in Columbus. "The entire problem of juvenile delinquency is in the hands of parents of boys and girls who are now running the streets at all hours of the night and early morning. Although the juvenile officer in my court has been trying to keep children off the streets and out of beer parlors and other establishments they merely laugh at him, because there is no law at present to back him up. This ordinance provides such support."

Cooperation Pleaded

The judge told council that Police Chief W. F. McCrady has promised full cooperation of his office in enforcing a curfew ordinance. "Members of the police department are well aware of the problem faced," council was told, "and all the members of the force

"Incognito Squadron" Nips the Nips

By GEORGE ROBOZ
Central Press Writer

AS MACARTHUR'S GALLANT YANKS and Australians press ahead in the Solomons and New Guinea, nameless men in Mitchell B-25 bombers are swooping low to blast Jap bases, strong points and supply depots. The "Incognito Squadron," flying the red, white and blue colors of the Netherlands, is settling an old score with the Nips.

A virtual foreign legion of the air, the squadron has in its ranks a Russian, a Chinese, Australian, Dutchman from the Hague and Rotterdam as well as dark-skinned Indonesians from Timor, Ambon and Java in the Netherlands East Indies. Most of them prefer to remain nameless, are known only as "Lieutenant X" or "Captain R" even when cited for conspicuous bravery, to protect relatives and families in Jap-held territories.

But when the squadron gathers in its billets after a flight, the men take keen delight in ribbing one of their comrades, the Russian, Capt. Ivan Smirnoff, formerly an ace pilot of the Royal Dutch Airlines.

Buried Treasure Lost

Smirnoff, evacuating civilians and valuables from Java last February, buried $1,500,000 worth of diamonds, consigned to the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, in the ground near Broome when his plane was shot down by Jap Zeros. He couldn't find the spot again next morning and has vowed to spend the rest of his life—if need be—searching for the lost diamonds after the war.

Smirnoff, big and jolly, is a spectacular member of the squadron. In World War I he was a fighter-pilot in the Russian Air Force and had a round dozen German planes to his credit.

After the Russian Revolution, Smirnoff became a Dutch citizen. He had more than 24,000 hours flying time before he joined the squadron. He is proudest of the flight he made in 1933 with the Christmas mails from Holland to the East Indies and return with the New Year mails. He made the return trip in eight days and covered 16,250 miles.

are ready and willing to back the measure to the limit," Judge Weldon stated.

Under the ordinance police will keep an accurate record showing every reported violation. This record will be available to the juvenile court and, as Judge Weldon pointed out, charges of contributing to delinquency of minor children may be pressed if parents are shown to be ignoring the ordinance.

The ordinance was prepared by Judge Weldon in cooperation with Solicitor Joe W. Adkins, who wrote the measure after receiving a copy of the ordinance passed in Columbus.

All members of council expressed their approval of the measure. Boyd Horn, representing the Fourth Ward, said that he favored an 11 o'clock curfew on Saturday night to permit youths from rural areas to have a little more time to enjoy their weekly visit to Circleville. However, he indicated he would support the measure even if the change was not made, when he was informed that police would use common sense in ordering youths off the streets on Saturday nights.

Many members of the squadron, which has already flown 250,000 miles in bombing and strafing missions against the Japs, have been killed or wounded. Some of those killed joined the squadron only recently after graduating from the Royal Netherlands Military Flying School at Jackson, Miss.

Among those severely wounded was Squadron Leader R. E. Jasurum. After destroying military installations at Palembang, he single-handedly attacked the Jap fleet in the opening phase of the Battle of the Java Sea.

They Knew No Rest

Both Jasurum and another Dutch officer, Lieutenant Winckel, hold the Netherlands Distinguished Bronze Cross for gallantry.

Winckel, a veteran of 3,500 flying hours, was ordered to fly supplies to troops in outlying posts, maintained a shuttle-service day and night until he was exhausted.

When the Indies fell, he was ordered to fly to Broome, in Western Australia. He made the hop in one day and flew back to Java the same night for more evacuees.

NO-NAME ACES—These nameless flyers of the "Incognito Squadron" care nothing for glory—they fly and risk their lives for revenge.

PLOT TO ALTER PERMIT FOR GAS DENIED BY PAIR

Matt W. Daniels, 37, Denver, Col., pipeliner, and Mrs. Dorothy McNames, 27, also of Denver, denied federal charges of conspiracy to alter an application for gasoline ration when they were taken before U. S. Commissioner Robert Newton in U. S. district court, Columbus.

Daniels and Mrs. McNames were arrested here Tuesday evening by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Daniels when he appeared at the county jail and Mrs. McNames at the Elms tourist camp on Route 22 west of Circleville.

Both are charged with raising the figure 70 to 970 miles in a permit for gasoline. They are held in Columbus city jail pending additional hearings to be conducted Thursday afternoon.
